AS MERE MAN SEES FASHION CHANGES

Sack Open at Both Ends Idea for Gowns-Cockroaches on Stockings.

BY MARQUIS DE CASTELLANE. Paris, July 26.—The net result of the fight of fashions in Paris at the close of the season is to wear a dress that does not fit. The chief thing in sisted upon is that the folds be ar-

With this exception, one might take a sack, open at both ends, cut a couple of holes for the arms to come through, tie a string or a colored sash round the sash so that it stands well away from the body, and have thereby the dress of to-day.

As a contrast to this, the lower part dress should be well drawn transparent.

When black and white is not chosen, delicate rose pink chiffon, with filmy coru lace seems to be favored. Several of the white charmeuse gowns are made in such a manner that they give the warers rather the appearance of jockeys.

PUBLIC HEALTH

New Manner of Treating Tuberculosis Regarded as Highly Important.

Paris, July 28.—All the physicians of France agree that the recent decree regarding tuberculosis is a revolution in hygiene. In their enthusiasm they say it is for public health what the revolution of 1789 was for public the second of 1789 was for publications.

Divide Honors in French Capital With Napoleon.

weak Charity Fete of Wealthiest French

Display of the Season.

[Special Cable to The Times-Dispatch.]
Paris, July 26.—Charity has become fashionable here and the honors for this year go to Countess de Bearn for her original way of getting money for a deserving cause.

The countess is the Astor of France. As a landlord she is to Paris what the Duke of Westminster is to London. In other words, she receives more money from Paris ground rents than any other landowner in the French capital Most of her property is in the neighborhood of the grand opera, ranked with the most costly land in the world.

She is beautiful, as well as rich. Her famous charity fete was made up of living pictures, which also moved. These moving human pictures were seen in the ballroom of her magnificient town house in the Avenue Bosquet.

seen in the ballroom of her magnificient town house in the Avenue Bosquet.

This Byzantine mansion was filled with groups of dancers costumed in different periods of French history. On entering, one feasted his eyes upon a group of dancers of the time of the consulate; Bonaparte and his consular court were there. The leading women of this group were the Frincess d'Arenberg, the Marquise de Brantes and the Countess Veil de Castel.

When enough had been seen of the consulate costumes, a party of pretty women frisked into the ballroom, taking their places. These were of the time of Louis Philippe, and were robed in the ficating gowns of that bourgeois period. An American led this group. She was Princess Guy Faucigny de Lucinge, formerly Miss Natica Perry, and later Mrs. Stickney. She was ably seconded by Countess Ignatief.

Suddenly the scene changed and a collection of beauties in crincline appeared. They were in the height of the fashion of the second empire. Here the Countess Jean de Segouzac was leading. If the Empress Eugenie saw this scene she would think she was enjoying her triumphal career again in the Tuileries. The countess was the belle of the ball.

Leaf Markets Opening Up Very Strong. Highest Prices Ever Before Known.

Leaf Markets Opening Lp Very Strong, Highest Prices Ever Before Known.

The leaf tobacco markets of South Carolina got busy last week, and perhaps every warehouse in the State is now selling the 1913 crop. The reports form these markets are to the effect that the stock being offered is unusually good for new tobacco, the crop showing up better than for several years. The reports also tell us that the markets opened very strong, and prices on all the desirable grades are higher than they were ever known to be at the opening of the season since ing was in progress near Summit Point.

SOUTH CAROLINA TOBACCO.

South Carolina has been growing bright tobacco. Two Richmond houses have called their buyers off in two of the markets because they think the markets because they think the weed is too high to be bought for speculative purposes. The warehouses in the Palmetto State will be kept on a rush now until the last of the crop is sold, which will probably be within two months.
